Biological Codes and Topological Causation*
Proteins are coded by triplet codons of DNA "letters" A, C, T, and G. (Illustra Media) On universal coding events in protein biogenesis (Kubyskin et al, Biosystems) The complete ribosomal protein synthesis cycle and codon-amino acids associations are universally preserved in all life taxa on Earth.

Biological Codes Are Everywhere | CEH
Although the genetic code is normally fixed in an organism, the achaeal prokaryote Acetohalobium arabaticum can expand its genetic code from 20 to 21 amino acids (by including pyrrolysine) under different conditions of growth.

We do know from the Genome Project that genetically there are only a small number of biological codes out of which all of biological life in its vast, varied formation has arisen. So why not look at the identified set of archetypes as being a certain number of psychical codes, out of which our psyche has arisen in its vast, varied formation.

Characteristics of the genetic code Triplet nature. A triplet code could make a genetic code for 64 different combinations ($4 \times 4 \times 4$) genetic code and provide plenty of information in the DNA molecule to specify the placement of all 20 amino acids. When experiments were performed to crack the genetic code it was found to be a code that was ...

Jungian archetypes are defined as universal, archaic symbols and images that derive from the collective unconscious, as proposed by Carl Jung. They are the psychic counterpart of instinct. That is to say they are a kind of innate unspecific knowledge, derived from the sum total of human history, which prefigures and directs conscious behavior.
