Since sound does not exist without our hearing of it, sound does not exist if we do not hear it. However, when a tree falls, the motion disturbs the air and sends off air waves. This physical phenomenon which can be measured by instruments other than our ears exists regardless of human perception (seeing or hearing) of it.

Can you hear me now Up above the crowd Singing whoa whoa-oh Can you hear me now so loudly Can you hear me, can you hear me now? I went deep inside, where monsters hide To free my mind, and come out alive Tell me when you kicked me did you ever think that I would get up Can you hear me now so loudly? I'm screaming at the top of my lungs

The reason we can hear any sound is because it makes sound waves, which are just tiny movements of the air that our ears are designed to pick up. Wind is a pretty massive movement of air, so we can't help but hear it, and it sounds like a roaring because all the molecules of the air are moving so fast.
