Impact of Globalisation on Architecture—Course Scholar

Robert Adam's The Globalisation of Modern Architecture takes a compelling and broad-ranging look at the output of the architectural world, writes James Pallister. It may seem an unlikely choice of subject for an architect known for being a practitioner of - say it sotto voce - 'traditional architecture', but Robert Adam has completed an impressively comprehensive and compelling survey of contemporary social and political theory.

The Globalisation of Modern Architecture by Robert Adam

This thesis is devoted to answering the question: in what way does the impact of globalisation affect the role of architecture, and how should it be interpreted ethically? It argues that the ethical evaluation of the role of architecture should be linked to architecture's natural ethical ability to form a relationship with a culture.
