Policy makers must reconcile policy (specific actionable rules) with politics (political ideology, party politics, and policy implementation). [1][2] In other words, Policy is what happens on paper; politics is the art of making it happen. A policy analyst figures out what a desirable policy is, a policy advocate advocates for broad or specific policies, and a politician involves themselves in the dealmaking necessary for policy implementation (and at every step, there are " trade-offs ").

An Analysis of Public Policy Implementation

In trying to understand the relationship between politics and policy outcomes, policy theorists have been debating whether policy implementation constitutes a "top-down" or "bottom-up" phenomenon. The "top-down" perspective focuses on upper-level officials to understand what motivates them in order to determine whether and why policy goals were attained during implementation.
